

End of an era

Well, last Friday was my last day working for Defence. On Monday I will be starting a new job with a company called CPT Global (URL). The farewell lunch organised by my team mates was terrific - we had pizzas down by the lake and had a hit of cricket.

The weather was perfect! I also received a very generous gift voucher which was used to purchase a brand new 16gb ipod touch (which i am using to write this blog entry).

Thanks for the present guys, i absolutely love it! (actually i think jo is on the verge of confiscating it because i am spending more time playing with it than her;).

I have had a great time working in the team and i look forward to keeping in touch with as many of you as possible in the future!
